6. Council Member Comment: on Matters not listed on the agenda

Vesta gave this update: Permit Sonoma's presentation of the final EIR on Sonoma County's Housing Element, which is included in the General Plan, was a proud moment of democracy in action. Our 5th District was well-represented, especially with people from Graton and Forestville. This is an imperfect plan but state mandates, and pressure from a policy called "Builders Remedy" which places development in the power of contractors rather than the public, pushed this EIR through a 5-0 board vote for approval. BUT, Forestville got some much-needed and important changes thanks to Lynda Hopkins' advocacy.

No one wanted FOR 4, at the end of a long driveway off a single lane road to be built into 60 units of housing, including the property owner. Although there is no Eminent Domain that would force this family to build, once zoning to high-density housing is established, it would be hard to go back to low density in the future, which basically forces this family to never develop their land for any housing. As Lynda stated, this property is a death trap in fire emergencies. There is no way this many people, in addition to those who already live on this road, could make it out alive if fire came raging up their hill.

Lynda Hopkins asked that FOR 4 be REMOVED from the plan in exchange for FOR 6 being put back in as a split-lot in order to accommodate both housing and Forestville's much-coveted Skatespot skatepark. The revised Housing Element went forward to a full vote of approval to head the the state for review. Forestville was saved from a mistake we don't have to live with now.

Forestvillians also came out in force for the environmental cleanup for FOR 1 - the Electro Vector plant next to Forestville School and Carr's Drive-in restaurant. This site is perfect for affordable housing, especially for seniors who prefer to live within walking distance of restaurants, shops, our downtown park and West County Trail. The toxic site must be cleaned up. It is a visual blight as well as a hazard to our community.

Thank you every Forestvillian who attended and spoke up on behalf of locals who feel strongly about having a voice in the future of Forestville.

Betsy announced that Russian River Pride is moving forward October 13-15 and the event's planner Cleve Jones is here tonight.

7. State Update from Senator Mike McGuire and County Update from Supervisor Lynda Hopkins
